Three Dukes

For one dollar. We have just received an importation of Japanese fancy linen handkerchiefs and have named them the THREE of the local talent who will sing the comic opera of that name next week at the Academy. They are very rich and handsome and are the very latest in men's fancy handkerchiefs. We could easily get 50c. or 75c. for them, and they would be so marked anywhere else each or THREE for ONE DOLLAR. See the window of them, you'll want one

MANLOVE IN WINNING FORM

Three Times He Piloted His Mount Pirst to the Wire.

DUKES as a compliment BUT TWO FAVORITES SCORED

Larchmont and Miss Modred Heavily Backed to Win Their Races, but They Failed to Land the Money-Luray, Reine d'Or, Queen d'Or, Turco, and Con Lucy Won.

Good sport prevailed at the second day's racing of the Old Dominion Jockey Club's meeting on Alexander Island, and the spectators had a lively time landing the winners. but notwithstanding that It was a great day for the d'or family, as they are the latest novelty races. A goodly amount of money was and can be had exclusively wagered on Larchmont and Miss Modred, but, to the disgust of their backers, neither could get there at the finish. The fine showof us. They are only but, to the disgust of their backers, nemer could get there at the finish. The fine showing of Turco in the two-year-old race stamps ing of Turco in the two-year-old race stamps him as being the best coit yet seen on the track.

It was expected the visitors by train would be landed at the track, but the Pennsylvania Railroad Company refused to take any chances in debarking passengers in front of the entrance to the course until the newly-constructed platform had been inspected and approved. The inspection should be made immediately, as the present arrangement of letting the crowd out at the south end of the Long bridge is very unsatisfactory and discouraging. The patronage yesterday was not up to that of the opening day, but the betting was better, and eight books were fairly busy.

All eight of those colored on the card went to the post for the first race, and Luray ruled favorite at 8 to 5. There was some doubt as to the mare's condition, but such was dispelled during the race, as getting off in the ruce she during the race, as getting off in the ruck she seen improved her position, and heading Fa-got in the last sixteenth, won a good race by three parts of a length. Fagot was six lengths before Poverty, with the others struck out.

three parts of a length, Fagot was six lengths before Foverty, with the others struck out. Mattie Chun was the only absentee from the three-year-old race, with Doc Birch, Pella, Reine d'Or, and Pocahontas all being more or less played at the average price of threes. The start was good, and Reine d'Or set the pace from the jump, leading all the way and winning handily by a length and a half. Mabel A. got away fairly well, and finished second, a head before Doc Birch, who came fast in the stretch. Pelia was well up for half the trip, but couldn't stay with the leaders.

Larchmont was considered a copper-fastened airtight in the mile race, which was third on the card, and his price was backed from 2 to 6 to 5. Queen d'Or was played by a few because of her victory on Thursday, and she rewarded her backers by going out in front and staying there, winning by four lengths from Fernwood, with the favorite a length back. Bayley rode Larchmont as if he was afraid of injuring Freddy Miller's pride.

A shaper was made on Miss Modred to win pride.

A plunge was made on Miss Modred to win the foarth, while Turco was also well played, the betting being confined to these two. Turco was in front all the way and won hands down by six lengths, with Miss Modred two lengths before Senator Hill.
The closing event went to the top-heavy choice, Con Lucy, while Keime finished second and Finance third. Summary:

Pointers from the Paddock.

Starter Cassidy again did well with the flag. Jockey Bayley rode Larchmont like he would a goat.
Miss Modred carried a lot of money and falled to bring it home.
Brown Charile was bleeding when pulled up in the first race.
Turco tried to bolt into the opening of the regular course, but was well handled by Maniore.
Con Lucy was backed down from 8 to 8 to 4 to 8, some books wiping out the odds altogether.

RAMAPO BEAT PICKPOCKET. Best Contest of the Day at Gravesend Was

New York, May 25 .- Alternate sun and rain were the conditions for to-day's racing at Gravesend. 'Seven races were run off, and the favorites did fairly well, although there were two rank outsiders which won. Both selonged to James McLaughlin, and both paid those who bet on them remarkably well.

paid those who bet on them remarkably well.

In the opening race Wernberg got off well in the lead and never was headed, and won galloping from Factotum. McLaughlin's cott Potash got the same kind of a start in the sixth race, and won all the way with scarcely the semblance of an effort.

The best contest of the day was in the second race at a mile and a quarter. Prince Kiamath led on sufferance for awhile, and then Pickpocket and Ramapo took the track, leaving the others further and further behind at each jump. In the stretch Ramapo assumed command, and although it was a hard drive for both to the finish, Ramapo won by three parts of a length, the others beaten off badly. Summaries:

WON BY BOSTON. Senators Broke Their Rain Hoodoo by Losing to the Beancaters. Boston, May 25 .- Al Maul pitched in fairly but his support was wretched, and the home team then hit him hard. Radford was the principal offender, having three errors, Ward played finely at second, but he could not find Nichols' curves, a difficulty encountered by the majority of his associates, Maul and Cartwright were the only Senators to do any batting, the latter's homer being responsible for all the runs made by Washington. Attendance, 500. Score:

Killen Weakened in the End. CLEVELAND, May 25 .- Five innings of today's game was a great pitcher's battle. In the sixth Cleveland scored one run by good batting and base running. HARRIS AND HOAR MAKE UP. After a Tilt in the Morning Mutual Ex-

In the consideration of the Kyle resolution on Hawaii yesterday a sharp verbal encounter oc-curred between Senators Harris and Hoar. Mr. Hear was disposed to continue the debate. He said that it was the universal sentiment, not only of the Senate, but of the country, that there should be no interference by the United States with the domestic affairs of Hawaii.

with the domestic affairs of Hawaii.

Mr. Morgan, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, fully indorsed what Mr. Hoar had said, and the latter was proceeding to say that he hoped Mr. Morgan's indorsement of his statement would echo around the world, when Mr.
Harris, who had grown very impatient, broke in and declared that the tariff bill was before the Senate and further debate on this subject was out of order.

ment would echo around the world, when Mr. Harris, who had grown very impatient, broke in and declared that the tariff bill was before the Senate and further debate on this subject was out of order.

Mr. Hoar flared up. He protested in vigorous terms against what he termed these repeated "antery and discourteous lectures" from the Senator from Tennessee.

"The tariff bill is before the Senate," retorted Mr. Harris, emphatically, "and the Senator from Massachusetts is violating the rules by continuing the debate on a resolution that has just gone over. As far as the courtesy of the Senator from Tennessee is concerned," he added in withering Lebes, "the over less courtesy to the Senator from Massachusetts han any other Senator from Massachusetts han any other Senator from Massachusetts han any other Senator from Massachusetts," returned Mr. Hoar in kind, "he is a hopeless Bankrupt; he could not pay one-thousanoth of a mill on the dollar."

"He could pay as much as the Senator from Massachusetts," returned Mr. Harris, and with this parting shot the incident closed.

Later in the day a pleasant incident occurred which restored the entents cordinale between Mr. Hoar referred to Mr. Harris for several days their hrusts at each other had been almost vicious. Last night just before adjournment Mr. Hoar referred to Mr. Harris as the "drum major" of the Democratic side. The passage at arms in the early part of the day between the Massachusetts and Tennessee Senators was the direct outgrowth of this remark. As Mr. Platt finished a few remarks Mr. Harris arose to move to lay the Aidrich amendment on the table. Mr. Harris with imposing deference, "I yield thirty seconds to reply to an observation made by Mr. Blanchard. "In view of the excessive courtesy of the Senator from Tennessee. The harris bounds as a jest. He thought it was so understood. He had not intended to be seriously disrespectful to the Senator from Tennessee. He held that Senator, he said, in the highest respect, not only for his kindness of heart his testimo

PRIVATE BILLS CONSIDERED.

Congress Takes Up Claims After Weeks of Appropriation. Private bills on the calendar were taken up and considered, and among those which were ordered to be favorably reported to the House was a bill for the relief of Thomas B. Reed, a Pennsylvania volunteer in the war of the rebel-

The fact that he bears the same name as the ex-Speaker was a decidedly fortunate circumstance, for the committee good naturedly agreed to the bill aimid cheers and laugater.

Several hours were speat in discussing a point of order which Mr. Burrows made against a resolution from the Committee on War Claims, bunching thirty-seven tills in one resolution, which was favorably reported. The point of order was overruled, and the resolution was taken up for consideration.

Mr. Burrows spoke against the growing number of claims pending before the Court of Claims. In addition to the $5.000,000 in claims now pending there were $19,591.874 of state claims, and he believed with Secretary Manning that it was necessary to enforce the statute of claims, and he believed with Secretary Manning that it was necessary to enforce the statute of limitations against these claims unless the Treasury was to be bankrupted. Mr. Enlee (Dom., Teum.), replying to the alle-gations of Mr. Burrows, asserted that the gentle-man from Michigan had made the same speech and the same prophecy of national bankruptcy before.

He criticised the parsimony of Congress in regard to these claims. In conclusion he expressed his peer opinion of the watchdogs of the Treasury, and the wish that that breed of dogs could be killed off.

Mr. Beed intimated that it was not courteous

Mr. Roed intimated that it was not courteous to express such sentiments in the absence of the gentiferant from Indiana (Mr. Holman). [Republican langther.]

Mr. Enles replied that he had not especially referred to Mr. Holman, but there were big dogs and little dogs, and dogs of all degrees engaged in watching the Treasury.

After a further general debate of little interest on the subject, the House took a recess until 8 o'clock, the regular Friday evening private bill session. Railway Mail Clerks in 1889.
